IN MEMORY

INGE: In sad but loving remembrance of our Husband and Daddy, Holmsey Inge, who departed this life July 7, 1950.

Death called our loved one from us,
We shall never forget that day.
Our hearts have been so lonely,
Since he went away.

A loving Husband and Father
So true and kind;
No friend on earth like him we find.
May God grant his eternal rest.
—Sadly missed by Wife,
Children and Grandchildren.

TO OUR FRIENDS:

Out of the fullness of your hearts you have given us your sympathy in our sorrow and we are humbled and grateful. Especially are we comforted by the love and esteem for "Bessie V." which you so generously evidenced in such countless ways all during her illness. Every expression of compassion for her family is deeply and lastingly appreciated.

BONE FOUND, REPLACED

Chicago.- Harold Walat, 19, was seriously injured in a motorcycle-truck collision. Taken to a hospital, it was found that a three-inch bone in Walat's leg was missing. A policeman found the bone, took it to the hospital and doctor's identified it as a fragment of the youth's left tibia. They cleaned it and replaced it in his leg. Five days later, the doctor's reported the leg was mending well. Had the bone not been found Walat would probably have had a short leg, or would have faced an expensive bone graft.

KEY AT GENEVA IS REUNITED GERMANY
ERUNITED GERMANY

By Stanley James
(Washington Correspondent)

Washington.- While top administration officials are away from Washington, attending the Geneva conference, those left behind keenly await the outcome of the first top-level meeting between the Russians and the United States in years, with the knowledge that the U. S. effort is keyed to an attempt to bring about free elections and the unification of Germany.

In the opinion of many foreign policy experts in Washington, the United States will have won a major victory in Geneva if free elections in Germany, and reunification, can be gained.

President Eisenhower - who insisted all along that the negotiations be confined to this question and related questions of guaranteed European security—has long recognized that the allies have all the trump cards when it comes to setting up a free election in Germany.

In the first place, West Germany is populated by 50,000,000 people. East Germany, whose citizens would have to vote in a free election, contains only about 18,000,000 people. It is known that the vast majority of West Germans would reject Communism in any free elections. Even if the Soviets managed to gain a big majority for Communist candidates in East Germany, they would be able to gain control of a new, unified Germany.

This allows the West to press for free elections with no fear of the consequences. Veteran congressional leaders, basing their opinions on secret testimony and secret intelligence reports, say Russia genuinely fears a reunified Germany above all other considerations in Europe. Twice in forty-one years German troops have invaded Russia and in World War I they defeated Russia, while just missing victory in 1941.

A reunified Germany, added to the strength of the non-Communist West, is a prospect that alarms Russians, That is why the President is willing to guarantee Russia against a new German attack. If by this proposal the West manages to gain an agreement for free elections in Germany, the democracies will have won the greatest diplomatic victory over the Communists since the cold war began, almost ten years ago.
